

OLD RESIDENT OF MAUI DEAD

James L. Fleming, an old resident of Maui, died Saturday night or Sunday morning. News of his death was brought to his son, John L. Fleming, by J. N. S. Williams, who came over in the Lurline yesterday. As the wireless is out of order from the other side of Maui, Mr. Fleming has been unable to get any particulars. The sad news was a surprise to him, as he did not know that his father was ill.

The late Mr. Fleming was in his late seventies and with his family had lived at Makawao, Maui, since 1889. He leaves a wife and five children—David T. Fleming, manager of Honolulu ranch, Maui, and John T. Fleming, president of James F. Morgan Co., Ltd., Honolulu, being his sons, and Mrs. W. S. Nicoll of Hamakua, Maui, Miss M. E. Fleming, principal of Hamakua school, and Mrs. Harry W. Baldwin of San Gabriel, Cal., his daughters.

MAUD POWELL HERE FOR TWO LOCAL CONCERTS

Great Woman Violinist Has Unique Experience on Boat from Coast

Maud Powell, the woman who has earned the title from many discriminating critics of the foremost American violinist, arrived today on the Sonoma from the coast for her local engagement of two concerts. Her husband and manager, Mr. Godfrey Turner, is with her, and they are bringing her accompanist, Mr. Harold Osborn Smith.

The date of the second recital of Maud Powell, the celebrated violinist, has been changed from Thursday, Jan. 2, to Monday, Dec. 30. Madame Powell will leave on the Wilhelmshagen Jan. 1 for the coast.

The first recital will be given Friday evening, Dec. 27, at the Hawaiian Opera house. Tickets are on sale at the promotion committee rooms.
Music has done more to advance the cause of the little god of love than all the moonlight and shady paths of centuries. At least, that is what Maud Powell believes. Perhaps she believes this because the violin, her chosen musical instrument, is more capable of expressing love, sorrow, tragedy and comedy than any other instrument made. Particularly is it expressive when telling a love story. Madame Powell discovered on her trip down that a violin can do more than bring hysterical applause from a crowded house.

The Sonoma was just two days out from San Francisco and the weather had calmed down. Madame Powell had become accustomed to the rolling of the ship and feeling in the mood for music got out her violin.

"I was not playing anything in particular," said Madame Powell, "just improvising here and there, sometimes running in a strain of some favorite selection, not really trying to play any particular selection." My husband said there was a note of sadness which made him feel lonely, but I was quite unconscious of it. Across from our stateroom was a young man whom we met this first day out. He appeared rather out of sorts with the world but did not say anything to us about his trouble. After I had finished playing Mr. Turner and I went for a walk on the deck. We met our neighbor and he was so changed and cheerful looking that we were very much surprised. He stopped us and shook my hand so enthusiastically that I could not make out what had happened. "I want to thank you," he said, "your music brought me to my senses and showed me the mistake I had made. I had a little quarrel with my wife; we have been married only a few months, and as this boat was leaving I foolishly made up my mind to leave and go to the colonies, for I thought I never wanted to see her again. Now I know I was to blame and it was the beautiful music you brought from your violin that made me realize it. Again I thank you. I have wireless her and

COLONIAL SALE; RARE BARGAINS

As was briefly stated in Saturday's issue, R. W. Shingle was the purchaser at auction that afternoon of the Colonial hotel property, part of the town residence of the late James Campbell, for $36,000, the sale having been conducted by E. L. Schwarzberg of the J. F. Morgan Co. It includes the main building and the middle portion of the land, fronting 141.9 feet on Emma street, extending back for a depth of nearly 500 feet to Punchbowl street and containing an area of 3.12 acres.

This sale was necessary in settling the estate of the late Mrs. Campbell-Parker, but does not involve the closing of the Colonial. On the contrary, the hotel will be expanded. Mr. Shingle will build some cottages on the place and the ladies' apartments will be located separately from the main building. At present there is a long waiting list for the bachelors' quarters, which will be reduced when the additional accommodations are provided. Miss Johnson, who has made a success of the hotel since starting it about two years ago, will continue as lessee.

About $1000 was realized from the sale of furniture belonging to the estate, in which some rare bargains were obtained. The mahogany and walnut furniture is about sixty years old and has a timber content characteristic of the cabinetmaker's art of the time it was made. Such rich woods nowadays are usually sliced up into veneering instead of being lavished in the solid for the various parts of chairs, tables and bedsteads. Works of art were sold at prices ridiculously proportioned to their value.

Three pieces of Chippendale furniture were sold for $27.50, $50 and $67.50 respectively. Mrs. George Beckley obtaining two of them to add to the thirty-odd pieces she bought at the Diamond Head residence sale a few weeks ago, making her Chippendale collection by far the largest in the islands.

Walter Macfarlane was the purchaser of two bronze statuettes, "The Crusaders," sculptor unknown, the works very old, for $38 and $15.

Albert Along bought six chairs of heavy walnuts for $26. The Along family has furniture to match these chairs which has been in its possession for many years.

A seashore painting by W. A. Coulter was bought for $175 by Walter Macfarlane.

Robbins B. Anderson secured a treasure in oil, "Lawyer and Client," painted by Banti, a French artist, from a picture in one of the great London galleries. He paid only $75 for it.

Miss Johnson purchased a crystal chandelier for $25 and a solid walnut sideboard for $50.

Walter Macfarlane acquired a solid walnut bedroom set, consisting of bedstead, dresser and washstand, for $132.50.

Presumably the last liner to reach Honolulu from the coast before the close of the old year, the Pacific Mail liner Persia, which has sailed from San Francisco, should arrive here on or about next Saturday. This vessel is expected to bring the balance of the belated Christmas mail from the mainland.

she will meet me in Honolulu and I will never forget the great Maud Powell.

"Of all the pleasant things that have been said about me I am sure that is the best and most sincere, and my violin never did a better deed than when it resulted that young husband and his wife."

THINGS FOR THE TABLE IN GUILD WINDOW

The large display window of the James Guild Company has been artistically decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and presents a very attractive appearance both in makeup and in selection of goods for display.

The goods are tastefully arranged on shelves draped with white and edged with streamers of tinsel, while the ceiling and background are paneled in green and red, each panel being bordered by gold tinsel. Colored lights in the form of fruits and flowers are strung along the shelves and

Malthoid Roofing

Wherever you see a roofing advertisement remember that its words of self-praise and description came from the original advertisements of the Malthoid Roofing makers.

Twenty-six years ago we said of our roofing all the nice things that are now said of every other roofing.

These "others" have stolen our words—imitated our methods—but they cannot duplicate the quality of Malthoid Roofing—it always was the best and always will be.

Whenever you see a roofing advertisement think of Malthoid the original.

the ceiling and add greatly to the color scheme of the window when lighted at night.
Many useful things are being offered by this concern this year in the way of tableware, cut glass, kitchenware, electric lamps, electric irons, carving sets and other articles. There is also a display of beautiful hand-painted china in the window, besides many things for the table in the way of chafing dishes, coffee percolators and water pitchers. One corner of the window has been given over to toys and dolls.
